DETAILED ACTION

1. Receipt is acknowledged of the response filed on 09 March 2005, which has been entered in the file.
2. The indicated allowability of claims 1, 2, 4-10, and 12-18 are withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Kannan (US 5,511,205). Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1, 2, 4-10, and 12-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kannan et al. (US 5,511,205)(hereinafter referred to as 'Kannan').

Re claims 1, 13, 14: Kannan teaches a power management system comprises a power source or battery (1312) powers a master device or main processor (252) or service processor (254) through a slave device or a battery controller (1010), a power detector within the battery controller that senses power provided to the master device via sensing a load on the battery or battery charge, and based thereupon regulates a power to the slave device by entering the battery controller into a sleep state (see Figs. 13-21; col. 23, lines 15-40).

Re claims 2, 4: The batter controller or the slave device performs a detecting of the power source available and allowing charging of the battery and supplying power to the main processor or service processor, etc. in which the such detecting, charging, and supplying power are performed using the various components such as a start-up circuitry (1302) and a power regulators (1304) serving as a comparator to notify the presence of power (see col. 23, lines 41-67).

Re claims 7, 16, and 17: The system including the microcontroller enters the sleep mode if the battery charge is below a threshold (col. 28, line 43- col. 30, line 13).

Re claim 8: The DC/DC converter (1504) comprises a switch that is needed to by off in order to reduce power supply to the slave device or the battery controller (see col. 29, lines 13-33).

Re claim 9, and 15: The battery controller or the slave device enters the sleep mode or selectively reducing power.

Re claims 10 and 18: The battery microcontroller execute the initialization routine for providing power when it detects the power supply (e.g., externally or battery) (col. 26, line 15-39; col. 28, line 58- col. 29, line 12).

Re claim 12: The batter is charged by current load wherein the battery controller is performs charging functions (see col. 23, lines 15-23; col. 27, lines 8-33).

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 3, 5, 6, 11, 19, and 20 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

Although, the best prior art of records to Kannan teaches power managing system for reducing power supply to the slave device according to the power supplied to the master device. However, Kannan taken alone or in combination of other references thereof, fails to particularly teach that a system and a method for powering the master-slave device arrangement comprises a that the master device is a scan engine of data collection device as set forth in the claims.
